

Nobuaki Eto

2024- present Member of Japan Psychoanalytic Society

2017- 2021 President of Japan Psychoanalytical Studies Organization

2012- 2024 IPA Candidate of Japan Psychoanalytic Society

2009 - present Teaching Staff at Fukuoka University Hospital

2005 - 2008 Graduate Course, Faculty of Medicine, Fukuoka University

2003 - 2005 Internship at Fukuoka University Hospital / Department of Psychiatry, Faculty of Medicine, Fukuoka University

I have worked as a psychiatrist at a university hospital in Japan, where I have been involved in research, education, and clinical practice as a specialist in psychoanalytic psychotherapy, suicide prevention, consultation-liaison psychiatry, and disaster psychiatry. In addition, I have been practicing clinical psychology in private practice since 2014.

From 2017 to 2021, I engaged in international activities as the president of the Japan Psychoanalytical Studies Organization (JPSO) and representative of IPSO in Japan. In 2018, I was a member of the program committee for the 2nd IPA Asia-Pacific Conference and was involved in the management of the conference.

Since 2018, I have been a member of the executive committee of the Japan Psychoanalytical Association (JPA) and have served as chair of several committees.

From 2021 to the present, I have been a delegate of the Japanese Society of Psychiatry and Neurology (JSPN). I am also a member of the Psychotherapy Committee, the Suicide Prevention Committee, and the Specialist Examination Committee in JSPN.

In 2024, I was certified as a psychoanalyst and a clinical psychologist.

Statement

As a psychiatrist, I have been involved in psychoanalytic clinical practice and academic activities. I believe that international exchange and information sharing will become increasingly important in the culture of psychoanalysis.

I am very honoured to be able to participate in the activities of this committee.